

Plein Air Watercolor Workshop with Dwight Rose
 Friday, September 29, 2017 from 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM
 Starts at ART Station in Stone Mountain as part of the 4th Annual Stone Mountain Plein Air Paint Out

Let veteran teacher and master watercolorist, Dwight Rose, guide you through this watercolor workshop for all skill levels. Through his patient, clear and effective teaching style, Dwight has helped hundreds of students get started in watercolor and provided many new techniques to intermediate and advanced painters alike. You'll leave with many fundamental skills & new insights to build upon.

We have all been told how essential it is to study from the "real subject" and not just a photo. Painters may follow along with Dwight as he demonstrates the creation of simple landscapes and elements such as skies, trees and water. As you follow along, not only will you create beautiful landscape paintings of your own, but you will develop skills that can be applied to any subject.

The key to having success with plein air is to keep the paintings simple, loose and "sketchy".

Dwight will instruct and guide each artist in how edit and enhance details to get the optimum effect in your paintings. He will demonstrate how viewfinders can be used to optimize composition for maximum impact. You'll create a quick sketch using shapes and values which is an effective way to plan the lights before starting your final drawing and especially while painting plein air.

The workshop begins indoors with insightful guides and demonstrations including his five key steps in plein air painting before moving to our painting location. Individual instruction while onsite helps each participant reach their goals. A generous amount of time is set aside for your questions and to give constructive feedback on your work.

Workshop will be limited to 15 participants, so register quickly!

WORKSHOP SUPPLIES AND REGISTRATION FORM

Supplies

Paints: watercolor paints come in dry cakes (blocks of pigments), pans (semi-moist wells of paint), and tubes. I like tubes because the painting process is faster when mixing and less taxing on my brushes.

Paper: It's always important to use good quality paper if you want to achieve the best results in watercolor. They come in a range of textures and weights. Select a size that comfortably fits your current outdoor paper support and easel.

Paint Brushes: There are many types of paintbrushes available, but they can be narrowed down to two types: synthetic and natural hair. Synthetic brushes usually are less expensive than natural ones; they do not retain water as effectively as natural-hair brushes. I use flat brushes with a few rounds to augment my collection.

Miscellaneous Supplies: palette, pencil with sharpener and eraser, paper towels, water container, masking tape, liquid frisket, gum Arabic, bug repellent.

NOTE: Thanks to the generosity of our sponsor, Exceptional Hospitality, we are able to offer several nearby hotels at reduced rates to our participants. Visit our website, or call ART Station for more details. Reservation deadline for discounts is September 15, 2017.
